

Working at my college radio station--a commercial, ad-supported venture--showed me how valuable a local source for music and news can be, supporting local culture and lending a forum for local political issues in a way that a Clear Channel station can't and won't.